

Hay Market Demand and Price Report for the Upper Midwest
As of February 8, 2016

Data Compiled by Richard Halopka UW-Extension Clark County
Crops & Soils Agent

All hay prices quoted are dollars per ton FOB point of origin for alfalfa hay unless otherwise noted.

The information presented in this report is compiled from public and private sales and reports in the Midwest.

The past several months of hay reports are archived. To view previous hay reports, go to the Team Forage web site and click on the past hay reports section.

Hay auction data will be collected on the first and third week of the month and posted on the following Monday when possible.

Demand and Sales Activity

Hay prices were steady this past week compared to the previous report. Small square bale alfalfa provided a premium price at auction and prices reflect the demand for small packaged hay.

For Nebraska, prices were mostly steady. There was a strong demand for small square hay in the market this week as farmers were preparing for forecasted heavy snow. The bulk of hay is for feedlots with good demand from small farmers and horse owners, reflecting the premium paid for small package hay. For Iowa, weather was pushing farmers to purchase hay and bedding. Dairymen are finding dairy quality hay, but the majority of hay sold was Grade 3 hay for grinding at lower prices.

In South Dakota, compared to last week hay sold with mostly steady undertones. With weather concerns there is a firm demand for bedding materials. One negative in the market, there is a limited volume of hay available at auction.

For Missouri, extreme weather temperature swings highlight the hay feeding season. Hay movement is quite light and some farmers may have an adequate hay supply into spring. Hay supply is heavy, demand is light, and prices remain steady.

In Southwest Minnesota, increase in the supply of hay offered for auction this week, the majority of the hay was lower quality hay. For Illinois, hay demand was moderate to good; prices were mostly steady, with firm prices for small square bales in the market. Hay producers are measuring their hay inventory to see if their supply will cover demand before this year's harvest.

In Wisconsin, finally some prime quality alfalfa hay at auction. Lower quality hay is plentiful in Wisconsin. Overall hay prices are steady when compared to the last report.

The Midwest straw prices continue steady with literally no change in prices from the last market report. Straw price for small square bales averaged $3.45 a bale (range of $1.00 to $6.00). Large square bale straw price was steady, with an average price of $33.60 per bale (range of $23.00 to $53.00); and large round bale straw price was steady, average price was $27.00 per bale (range of $13.00 - $36.00 per bale). There is a good demand for straw in the Midwest.

The next Hay Market Demand and Price Report for the Upper Midwest will be posted on February 22, 2016.
