

Hay Market Demand and Price Report for the Upper Midwest For November 25, 2019

Data Compiled by Richard Halopka Senior Outreach Specialist
Clark County Extension
Crops & Soils Agent

All hay prices quoted are dollars per ton FOB point of origin for alfalfa hay unless otherwise noted.

The information presented in this report is compiled from public and private quality tested sales and reports in the Midwest.

The past several months of hay reports are archived and you may view previous hay reports, go to <http://fyi.uwex.edu/forage/> on the Team Forage web site and click on the past hay reports section.

Hay auction data is collected on the first and third week of the month and posted the following Monday when possible. Prices quoted in this report are for “as fed” alfalfa hay.

Demand and Sales Comments

Hay prices were steady this week with some downward pressure in the market. There is a good demand for high quality hay with a limited supply. If you are in need of forage or have forage for sell connect to the Farmer-to-Farmer webpage at <http://farmertofarmer.uwex.edu/>. You may contact your local county agriculture educator if you need help placing an ad. There is no charge for the service.

Straw prices are for oat, barley, or wheat straw. Prices are strong for all packages of straw. Small square bales averaged $4.75 a bale (range of $3.00 to $6.00). Large square bale straw averaged $61.00 per bale (a wide range of $30.00 to $90.00). Large round bale straw averaged $60.00 per bale (a range of $28.00 - $65.00).

In Nebraska, hay sold on steady prices this week as demand has picked up. One reason for increased demand are feedlots filling pens. In Iowa, prices for alfalfa hay are trending steady to higher this week.

In South Dakota, prices are steady to firm with good demand for large square bales. Demand is very good for high all kinds of quality hay.

In Missouri, hay movement is slow. Moderate supply with light demand and steady prices. Small lots of horse hay is the main mover this week.

In Southwest Minnesota, prices were steady, with a slow to moderate demand and no top quality hay available at the market. In Kansas, hay trade is moderate with slow to moderate demand and steady prices. Many farmers have reported an increase in hay movement.

In Wisconsin, prices remain strong for top quality hay. Quality hay supplies remain tight with a good supply of lower quality hay.

The next Hay Market Demand and Price Report for the Upper Midwest will be posted on Monday, December 9, 2019.
