

Hay Market Demand and Price Report for the Upper Midwest For January 13, 2020

Data Compiled by
Richard Halopka Senior Outreach Specialist
Clark County Extension
Crops & Soils Agent

All hay prices quoted are dollars per ton FOB point of origin for alfalfa hay unless otherwise noted.

The information presented in this report is compiled from public and private quality tested sales and reports in the Midwest.

The past several months of hay reports are archived and you may view previous hay reports, go to <http://fyi.uwex.edu/forage/> on the Team Forage web site and click on the past hay reports section.

Hay auction data is collected on the first and third week of the month and posted the following Monday when possible. Prices quoted in this report are for “as fed” alfalfa hay.

Demand and Sales Comments

Welcome to 2020 and new decade. Hay prices remain steady with a lack of high quality hay available at many markets. Round bales are discounted compared to other packages. Currently if you need forage or have forage for sell connect to the Farmer-to-Farmer webpage at <http://farmertofarmer.uwex.edu/>. You may contact your local county agriculture educator if you need help placing an ad. There is no charge for the service.

Straw prices are for oat, barley, or wheat straw. Straw prices were steady and there is a demand for straw. Small square bales averaged $4.60 a bale (range of $2.00 to $6.00). Large square bale straw averaged $64.00 per bale (a range of $40.00 to $90.00). Large round bale straw averaged $58.00 per bale (a range of $40.00 - $85.00).

In Nebraska, hay sold steady, demand is light in 2020. Some are having a hard time delivering hay because of muddy conditions. In Iowa, hay prices are lower compared to prices earlier in the fall.

In South Dakota, prices are firm with good demand for all types and quality of hay and straw. Greatest demand is from out of state buyers.

In Missouri, hay business is very slow. Hay supply is moderate to heavy, demand is light; prices are steady. Weather concern as moisture is in the forecast.

In Southwest Minnesota, prices were steady, with a supply of hay available at market. In Kansas, hay trade and demand is slow. Prices remain steady on a limited test. Rainfall has reduced concern of drought in the state.

In Wisconsin, prices remain strong for top quality hay. Demand for hay and straw.

The next Hay Market Demand and Price Report for the Upper Midwest will be posted on Tuesday, January 28, 2020.
