

COMMUNICATION PROJECT RECORD

Although you may have participated in only one unit specifically, learning in other areas is encouraged. Check all the activities you did, even if they are in units you did not take.

It's All In The Family

- Scheduled family meetings
- Set ground rules for your family meetings
- Learned the five steps for dealing with conflict
- Practiced the five steps for dealing with conflict
- Played the "How well do you know each other" game
- Read books aloud to your family
- Listened to other family members as they read books aloud
- Made a habit of saying "thank you" when a person does something you appreciate
- Keep track of the negative things you said and try to change them to positive
- Made a point of trying to help out others in the family with their chores
- Remembered to compliment others for little things as well as big
- Left little surprise notes to brighten someone's day
- Created a bulletin board for a Compliment Corner
- Had an Unbirthday party

Voices from The Past

- Visited you area's historical center
- Watched movies that deal with life in earlier times
- Interviewed an older person in your family or community
- Put together a scrapbook that includes photos of the person you interviewed
- Made a collage or photo exhibit that illustrates special customs, traditions, foods or other

More things I have learned:

My favorite thing about this project is:

You may enhance your record with a story, photos with captions, and/or newspaper clipping.