

“What’s your Color?”

Understanding yourself and others for better communication and effective meetings.

Join fellow local government officials for a special leadership development session!

Being a government official includes understanding your own communication styles and skills. This session will use the Real Colors® assessment tool to help you better understand your personality temperament and how it influences your communication and team work styles. Understanding your own style, and the styles of others, is helpful in improving communication skills, understanding conflict, and leading effective meetings.

This session will help you understand yourself by using a research-based temperament assessment called Real Colors® (www.realcolors.org). This session will be facilitated by Catherine Neiswender, UW-Extension, Real Colors® Certified Facilitator. This is a discussion based, fun, interactive session. Participants will receive their own Real Colors® assessment booklet.

When: Tuesday, March 31, 2015, 6pm-8pm

Where: JP Coughlin Center, 625 E County Rd Y, Oshkosh, WI

Cost: Cost for the session is $10 to cover materials and refreshments. Payment (cash or check only) may be mailed in advance or made at the door. Please make checks payable to "University of Wisconsin Extension". Mail to UW-Extension, 625 E County RD Y, Oshkosh WI 54901

Registration is required: please call (920) 232-1972 or click here to register – <http://goo.gl/57G8a0> (the last figure of this weblink is a zero). Registration deadline is Wednesday, March 25, 2015.

There is a minimum of 16 participants required, maximum 30. If cancelled due to low registration, registrants will receive a full refund and will be notified via email.

Questions? Contact Catherine Neiswender, UW-Extension, cneiswender@co.winnebago.wi.us or 920-232-1972